Lost Boy of Sudan Shares Story of Hope

On October 10, 2019, Lost Boy of Sudan, Bol Aweng, shared his incredible story of survival and hope to the entire student body of Karrer Middle School. He received such a warm welcome the minute he stepped inside the school from Brooke Menduni, the principal, Michael Blake the assistant principal and others.

Two students, Akhil and Teja, did a wonderful job of introducing Bol and sharing about his background. They had certainly done their research and knew a lot about Bol and his talent as an artist.

Special thanks to Stephanie Ames, 7th grade Language arts teacher, who contacted Bol about coming to talk with the students about his experiences as one of the Lost Boys. Students had read several books about refugees and the Lost Boys, so this opportunity helped their learning come alive.

Bol was thrilled to get a Karrer t-shirt to remember his visit!

This school is planning to do a fund raiser event to help raise money for Bol's clinic in South Sudan that provides life saving medical care for mothers and children.
